

RCN Collection of Nursing Doctoral Theses

Thank you for offering to donate a copy of your PhD thesis to the RCN Collection of Nursing Doctoral Theses. (Currently printed theses are kept in the RCN library Steinberg Collection for reference use only). All theses may be searched using the RCN online library catalogue at <http://www.rcn.org.uk/library/catalogue/> select the thesis search option and enter keywords.

Please complete the form below so that we can ensure that your thesis is used in accordance with your wishes.

Section 1 Donation of a thesis

If you are donating a printed copy of your thesis, please answer question 1.1.
If you are donating an electronic version of your thesis, please answer question 1.2.

I give the RCN permission to make copies of the thesis or parts of it, or to permit others to make such copies, subject to the following conditions:

1.1 Printed copy:

1.1.1 I give permission for a single photocopy of up to 5% of the length, or one chapter, whichever is the longer, to be made by an individual for their personal research of private study Yes No

OR

1.1.2 I do not give permission for any part of this thesis to be photocopied. Yes No

1.2 Electronic version:

1.2.1 Is the full-text of your thesis available on the Internet e.g. via an open access Institutional repository? Yes No

Please give the URL
If the URL is available, please go straight to Section 2.

1.2.2 I give permission for the RCN to store a copy and make available via the RCN web site Yes No

OR

1.2.4 I give permission for a single copy of up to 5% of the length, or one chapter, whichever is the longer, to be made by an individual for their personal research of private study Yes No

Section 2 Celebrating Nursing Research

The Royal College of Nursing (RCN) is committed to the development of nursing research as a vehicle for the promotion of excellence in patient care and the shaping of health policies. Together, the RCN media team and the RCN Research Society aim to publicise nursing research throughout the media in order to communicate our commitment to developments in nursing research.

Participating in media work helps raise both the public and the professional profile of nursing research and your research in particular. It also helps to secure and enhance the future funding of research in nursing. If you consent, the RCN may contact you and arrange to publicise your research. This could be through a variety of national, regional and health print and broadcast media. If the RCN media team decide to publicise your research, we will issue you with guidelines about how to work with the media.

Thesis Promotion

Do you consent to making yourself available to the media for promotional work? Yes No

I warrant to the RCN that I am the owner of the copyright in this thesis and the content of this thesis does not infringe any copyright or other proprietary or intellectual property rights of any natural or legal person.

Signed..... Date.....

Name

Address:.....
.....

Email Address:.....

Telephone:.....

Title of thesis:.....
.....

Year awarded:

Awarding institution:.....

Thank you for your contribution to the RCN Collection of Nursing Doctoral Theses

Please post or scan and email completed forms to:

Billie Joel (Ms) - Information Specialist,
Library and Information Services, Information & Knowledge Management
Royal College of Nursing,
20 Cavendish Square,
London W1G 0RN
Tel. +44(0)20 7647 3630
Fax: +44(0)20 7647 3420

Email: acquisition.services@rcn.org.uk