4th annual national joint conference on healthcare associated infection

Conference fee just £15

Putting infection control into perspective

Health care associated infection (HCAI) remains a major challenge to health care providers in all settings be they community, acute, mental health or health and social care.

Sustaining long term improvements and engagement with those providing or influencing care is absolutely crucial as the development of infection and evolution of micro-organisms will always be with us.

Infection prevention and control is at the heart of initiatives to provide high quality, safe care to patients across the UK and Europe. The Royal College of Nursing recognises the key role that nurses and nursing play in leading and influencing HCAI reduction initiatives.

The Department of Health, the Royal College of Nursing and the National Patient Safety Agency are committed to collaborative professional working which promotes and facilitates patient safety. This fourth joint national conference is aimed at all levels of health care professionals and clinicians who have an interest in improving infection prevention practice. Our speakers will put infection prevention into perspective for 2010 and explore how high quality and safe provision of health care can be achieved through collaborative working at local and national level and also through engagement with our partner organisations.

Programme will include:

- Sustaining reductions in HCAI beyond 2010: Keys to success
- The role of the nurse in reducing Antimicrobial Resistance
- Using the Core learning Unit to support nursing practice
- Urinary tract Infections – aetiology, impact and prevention
- Legislation, the Code of Practice and the nurse
- Role of the healthcare assistant in reducing healthcare associated infections
- National Resource for Infection Control (NRIC)
- Role of the link nurse
- Saving lives/Essential steps
- 5 moments audit tool
