

antiseptic remedies, but one and all of them may be robbed of half, if not all, of their efficacy if the household sanitary precautions I have just dwelt upon are neglected or ignored, for aerial contamination may baffle them all, and the poisonous gas may attack the respiratory tract, and the pulmonary mucous membrane convey infection, as well as the genital tract. Hence it is I attached so much importance to those disinfectants (notably Condy's Fluid, that is really an aërial purifier), and still more must we rely upon that great purifier of all, the oxygen of the atmosphere as it reaches us in the fresh air, for without thorough ventilation—that is constantly changing the air of the bedroom—no scheme of disinfecting can be complete. NURSING ECHOES.

* * All communications must be duly authenticated with name and address, not for publication, but as evidence of good faith.

I AM asked again to mention the fact that the General Council of the British Nurses' Association will meet to-morrow (Friday) afternoon, at five p.m., at 20, Hanover Square. I hear that Sir William Savory will take the chair, and that after the formal business of the meeting is over, H.R.H. Princess Christian will be presented with the first copy of the first Register of Trained Nurses. There will doubtless be a large meeting to witness this historical event, and it is very fitting that the
