

assured that every purchaser will be fully satisfied with the quality and price, but from the importance of encouraging our home manufactures. The textile fabrics of the Lancashire mills stand unrivalled for quality and durability. This "Boltonian Elastic-ribbed Under-wear" can be obtained at any drapers or outfitters.

THE EXCELSIOR DISINFECTANT is a little convenient apparatus which diffuses automatically a pleasant and well-known antiseptic. It is enclosed in a neat paper box and can be hung up anywhere in the bedroom, nursery, or lavatory. It certainly is very useful for its purpose, and is recommended also for the purpose of keeping away moths, flies, mosquitoes, &c., for which we consider it is particularly adapted. Its retail price is only sixpence, and it is claimed to possess antiseptic properties sufficient to last at least twelve months. The sole agents are Messrs. Wagner and Gerestly, Limited, 8, Moor Lane, E.C.

GILBERTSON'S IMPROVED DUPLEX SANITARY PAIL is so constructed that it can be used both as an ordinary toilet pail and also as a "Commode" for the sick room, it being

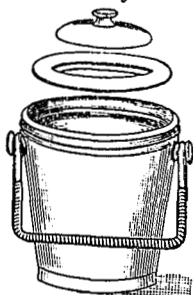

Fig. 1. easily converted into the latter by means of the circular convex ring, Fig. 2, upon which the lid, Fig. 1, fits, forming a perfect cover when not in use. This is manufactured in glazed white earthenware, with easily and inexpensively replaced and absolutely noiseless cane handles. It can thus be readily washed both inside and out and disinfected, if necessary, without the slightest trouble. The seat of the "commode" portion is a broad and comfortable one, whilst its height is much more convenient than that generally given to those generators of everything that is obnoxious—i.e., the ordinary wooden box commode. When nursing infectious cases it should be simply invaluable, both on account of its portability as well as its general adaptability to the requirements of modern antiseptic ideas. They are manufactured by Messrs. Gilbertson and Sons, 11, St. Andrew's Street, Holborn, E.C., and are 6s. 9d. each.

The Remedy, an Easy Exit." This is a well-considered work, by René Rêsusche, a gentleman who has devoted years to the subject, and patented a system which it is claimed will meet all difficulty in the matter of exit in case of panic of any kind. There are some interesting facts and figures given of many of the large buildings throughout the world, and also of those which have had the misfortune to be burnt down. Any one interested—and everybody connected with institutions of any kind ought to be—should have this little book, which may be had for one shilling of S. Wilkins, Mansion House Chambers, 20, Bucklersbury, E.C., who can be addressed on the subject if fuller information is desired.

POCKET MEDICAL LEXICON, by John M. Keating, M.D., and Henry Hamilton, published by Mr. H. K. Lewis, 136, Gower-street, W.C., is a well-compiled and exceedingly practical little work of 280 pages. It is well printed and its definitions are easily understood, not being clouded with too much technicality. There are addenda consisting of the etymological phrases common in medical terminology, comparative tables of metric and apothecaries' weights, a list of poisons and their antidotes, and abbreviations used in prescriptions.
