

Johannes Mellinghoff, Chair, Nursing and AHP, European Society of Intensive Care Medicine

Johannes is a Senior Lecturer within the School of Nursing at Kingston and St George's University London, where he leads the Critical Care pathway for BSc and MSc Healthcare Practice Programmes.

Originally from Germany, he has worked in ICU in different international hospitals and has 25 years of ICU experience. Johannes's academic interests are in the area of outcome and process management of patients admitted and discharged from Intensive Care Units. Over the years he has participated in many interventional & observational research trials focusing on neurological outcomes, family satisfaction and hemodynamic monitoring and most recently on the use and availability of PPE during the pandemic.

He is an elected chair of the Nursing & Allied Healthcare Professional Committee of the European Society of Intensive Care Medicine and member of the Taskforce for the C19 Space European Commission sponsored educational programme to teach non-ICU clinicians essential ICU skills.
