Clinical nursing support roles

- Healthcare/nursing assistants can work within hospital or community settings under the guidance of a qualified healthcare professional.

- The role can be very varied depending upon the area in which the person is employed. Working alongside qualified nurses, for example, they may sometimes be known as nursing auxiliaries or auxiliary nurses.

- Clinical support workers (sometimes known as therapy assistants or therapy helpers) work alongside allied health professionals such as physiotherapists, radiographers, podiatrists, speech and language therapists, dietitians and occupational therapists
Tasks and procedures

• Such as washing and dressing feeding, helping people to mobilise, toileting, bed making, generally assisting with patients overall comfort, monitoring patients conditions by taking temperatures, pulse, respiration's and weight; preparing patients for their therapy, setting up equipment to use in the session/treatment, assisting the therapist in the treatment itself, contributing to record keeping
