

Did you nurse people with HIV/AIDS in the 1980/90s?

If so, I would really like to speak to you.

My name is Dr Tommy Dickinson. I am a nurse and historian working at King's College London, and I am currently working on a project that is exploring the nursing care of people with HIV/AIDS before antiviral medication was readily available.

Whilst there have been histories written about HIV/AIDS, there has been almost nothing on the actual nursing work that was done caring for these people. Therefore, I am seeking Registered Nurses who nursed people with HIV/AIDS from 1981-1996, either on the special wards that were created to care for people with HIV/AIDS, or within any other setting.

Also/alternatively, do you have diaries, letters, photos or any other interesting material relating to nursing people with HIV/AIDS during this period?

If you would either like to be interviewed, or have some material that may be of interest, then please contact me, with no obligation to continue if you decide not to.

Email

tommy.dickinson@kcl.ac.uk

Post

Dr Tommy Dickinson
Florence Nightingale Faculty of Nursing and Midwifery
King's College London
London
SE1 8WA

Telephone

+44 (0) 20 7848 4698 and leave a message for me.
Please remember to leave your name and contact details.

